ALL ABOUT GRADINGS, COLORS AND SURFACE TREATMENTS

HARDENED WOOD FLOORING

Diverse gradings for multiple interiors

A grading, which refers to the variation in the floor's appearance, is down to personal taste. Do you like a more natural grading with visible grains and plenty of knots? Or one that is calmer and more harmonious? The grading should meet your aesthetic preferences.

At Bjelin, we offer three different gradings for our Woodura Planks 3.0, from clean to more lively ones. This guide will provide the information you need to select the grading that best suits your space.

Select

Blend

Nature

Select

The Select grading is a breathtaking option for those seeking a harmonious and soothing atmosphere. It's clean with some color variations and fewer and smaller whole knots. With these limited natural imperfections, the floor evokes a sense of peacefulness, refinement and elegance. This minimalist and effortless choice is ideal for a modern and contemporary home.

Blend

The Blend grading is the best of two worlds: a mixture of Select and Nature. This unique grading blends the elegance of Select with the character of Nature, creating a clean-looking floor with a few visible grains and knots. Enjoy the smooth, unblemished appearance of Select with just the right amount of natural character marks, knots, and variations that add warmth and depth to your space.

Nature

The Nature grading celebrates the natural beauty of wood. With its unique and unpredictable patterns, knots, and character marks, this grading creates a sense of warmth and nostalgia, bringing the beauty of the outdoors inside. With its natural color variations, it adds authenticity and character to a space. The Nature grading is timeless and inviting and will suit multiple interior design styles for generations.

Natural imperfections preserve the integrity of our hardened wood floors

Opened and closed knots, cat paw and cracks in the surface are not product defects and in no way compromise the quality or durability of our wood flooring. Likewise, medullary rays, color variations and mineral streaks are unique features that embrace nature's uniqueness and beauty. These expected imperfections maintain the depth and personality of our wood flooring.

Woodura Planks 3.0 with a brushed surface

Our Woodura Planks 3.0 are available in a long-awaited brushed surface that highlights the oak's structure in an elegant way. The brushed surface provides an exquisite look and is reminiscent of the structure of a natural, oiled wood floor – but with the advantages of the lacquer, which makes the floors easier to clean and maintain. Match the color of the floor with the walls and textiles or create contrasts and make the home more rustic with natural grain and brushed planks. We recommend brushed surface in residential applications.

Our tough pro matte finish

The new pro matte finish surface treatment is our best version yet, making these floors extremely durable. They are ideal for busy spaces within hotels, shops, offices and cafés – or a heavily trafficked area of your home. The pro matte finish finish makes the floor easy to maintain while protecting it from stains.

Our Woodura Planks 3.0 are available in many different designs. Our sophisticated range of colors suits many interior design styles, so you can add a modern touch, an air of elegance or create a calm and soothing atmosphere.
We recommend the pro matte finish surface for heavy-duty residential and commercial areas.

The natural beauty of oak color variations

Oak wood flooring offers a rich spectrum of color variations, making it a versatile choice for any interior. Oak can range from white to yellow with hints of red, while its grain may feature brown tones that vary from intense to light. Additionally, the presence of knots and bark pockets can add unique character to the wood. These variations are also dependent on the grade of the wood. A clean Select grading has a smoother look, whereas other grades such as Blend or Nature may showcase more of these natural features.

The beautiful spectrum of ash wood colors

Ash wood flooring's diverse color variations make it ideal for both contemporary and traditional design styles. Ash can range from white to yellow, with lighter brown tones appearing in the grain and around any knots. These variations add a subtle yet distinct character to the wood, enhancing its natural beauty. The color and grain differences in ash are influenced by the wood grading, with cleaner grades presenting a more uniform appearance and fewer natural variations.

The deep and elegant shades of walnut wood

Walnut wood flooring is a sophisticated choice with color variations ranging from light grey-brown to chocolate brown and dark reddish-brown. The grain in the walnut wood also varies, from subtle to highly pronounced patterns. These variations contribute to the unique and luxurious appearance of the walnut wood, adding depth and richness to the flooring. The color and grain differences are further shaped by the wood grading, with the cleaner Select grade offering a more consistent look while other grades highlight the wood's natural diversity.
